FORESTRY COMMISSION AREA SCHOTTEN

The Forestry Commission Area of Schotten covers over 16,000 hectares, in the heart of Germany. Offering a substantial level of natural regeneration, the forest is the perfect habitat for red deer, wild boar and roe deer. The terrain is a low mountain range up to 500m over sea level. Oaks, beeches and spruce are the dominant trees in this forest. In recent years our guests have achieved an impressive tableau of game. All aspects of the hunt are meticulously organized and every hunter will be introduced to his or her high seat for the drive. We hunt with experienced dogs, handlers and beaters who know the area intimately.

Because of its central location, Schotten is conveniently situated and easy to get to. Enjoy this driven hunt in a beautiful landscape with abundant game and experience the very best in German hunting tradition!
